ering the length of the document, and the importance of the subject treated. The president wrote every line of it, without having resource to dictation. Returning to Washington Sunday afternoon, he had a conference with Scoretary Cliney, and Secretary Lamont that night, and then sitting down to his desk, he worked unremittingly until nearly 4 o'clock Monday morning. The result was fifteen pages of manuscript in the president's peculiar small hand, and it was all in print before it o'clock that same morning.

THE SENATE WILL OBJECT.

Will Demand for Itself the Right to Name the Commission—Several Defects to Be Ramedied.

Washington, Dec. 18.-The Post to-morrow will say: The resolution which the house passed yesterday with such imanimity providing for the commission to Venezuela in accordance with the recommendation of the president, will be laid before the senate tooday. Contrary to the general expectation, it will not be passed by that body. In addition to this, the resolution passed by the house for adjournment for the holiday reverse, to begin next Friary, will not be agreed to by the senate. Congress will be in session until next Thesday, at the present outlook, and it may be here until even a later date.

The reasons seven for its failure to pass promptly are that the Republican senators and many of the Democrats are opposed to giving the president all the power which would be invested in him by the resolution. It will be insisted, says the Post, that the commission shall be nominated and confirmed by the secrate instead of having them named by the president without any check whatever upon his selection. In view of the important and responsible duties which they will perform, the senators feel that there should be some investigation into their character, and qualifications. In addition to this, the point was made in the caucie yesterday that there was in the house resolution no limitation as to the time when the commissioners should report, and this was felt to be an oversight which should be remedied.

SENATE NOT COOLING OFF.

Republicans and Domocrats Alike Announce Their Determination to Stand by Washington, Dec. 18.—The senate com-mittee on foreign relations was in session to-day and decided to sit during the holi-day recess for the consideration of the enezuelan question in its entirety. is the intention to take it up in all its phases, and to that end they will have before them all the reports and documents bearing upon the subject. The result of this inquiry, in all probability, will be a resolution defining the position of the United States on the Venezuelan dispute, coupled with a declaration of the Mourue doctrine.

United States of coupled with a declaration of the Mouroe coupled with a declaration of the Mouroe doctrine.

The Republicans will continue their efforts to have the committee filled before the adjournment for the holidays in order to give the proceedings full weight. There is no doubt expressed in any quarter that congress will grant the request of the president to be allowed to appoint a commission to consider the question, but the mission to consider the question, but the confine in congress appears to be that conceiling in congress appears to be that cress should also conduct an inquiry of its own.

There is a feeling on the part of some of the more extreme Republicans that a commission might delay and keep the matter in suspense for too great a time. It would not be necessary, it is said at the senate, for the commission to leave the United States, as all the maps, surveys, freaty and other documents are said to be available in Washington, it is presumed that the Vonezucian government would be found willing to supply any papers in its possession that might be wanted.

There was no evidence to-day of any cooling off on the part of the senators on the Venezuelan question. It is noticeable that Republicans are with Democrats in amouncing their determination to stand by the executive in any forward move he may make in the matter.

There is also talk of the necessity of completing the organization of the committee on naval affairs with the view of having it sit during the recess.

Continuing, the Westminster Gozette remarks: "The fact is that the present situation is the result of an unfortunate combination; on one side a foreign secretary who was once a Saturday reviewer, and who could not avoid the temptation of scoring in an argument, and on the other side a president who could not resist the temptation of scoring in an argument, and on the side a president who could not resist the temptation of scoring in an electeral campaign, but the mass of the peaking of both countries remard the possibility of war on any such issue with blank increduity."
